

How long is the trial period on your first driving license?

☐ 5 years

☐ 4 years

☒ 2 years

On your first driving license, you get a 2-year trial period. This means that if you have your driving license revoked during this time, you must take a new driving test (knowledge test and driving test) before a new driving license can be manufactured. For A1, A2, A and B, you also have to redo the risk education. Trial period does not apply when you take an AM driving license.

☐ 1 year

Question 7 of 12
Information lesson

In Sweden, the trial period of a driving license is for two years. If the license is revoked during this time, what must one do to get a new one?

✔ A new driving test is required no matter how long the trial period is

Risk educations, the theory test and the on-road test must then all be done again. The trial period will not be extended if you expand your driving license with for example, BE or C-privileges.

☐ A new driving test is required only if the trial period is more than a year

☐ It is enough to just do the risk educations, no matter how long the trial period is

Question 8 of 12
Information lesson

To gain more driving experience, people in Sweden are allowed to have private driving practice. However, to do this, both you and your private instructor must have had training. How can you be sure that the instructor is approved to take you out for driving practice?

✕ It is enough if the instructor has held a driving license for five years. He or she does not need a special permit to take me out for practice.

○ If the instructor says he or she has done a training course, I can be sure.

✓ The instructor must be able to show me an official permit.

It is vital that you know the instructor has attended a course and then applied for, and received, permission to take you out for driving practice. Courses can be taken at most traffic schools and applications can be made via Transportstyrelsen.se.
